

Introduction to Ed Stivala – n3w.media

Every now and again you meet someone who really knows how to add value. We met this man 5 years ago when he was a magician (after a spell in IT and various other entrepreneurial ventures). We knew we wanted to work with him again and a few years later the chance came.

His name is Ed Stivala and he handles all our core web site development and internet related work. From the moment we met him he was looking for ways to add value to our business. This does not mean that he tries to sell us new products he has or more consultancy. In fact, it is quite the reverse: he focuses on looking for how he can help our business in any way possible and this might be through a suggestion, an introduction to someone or even challenging our thinking and helping us see that we might be wrong!

This guy really is magic!!
